Duncan Hughes

Duncan Hughes is a seasoned financial lecturer and trainer with over 25 years City experience gained at NM Rothschild and as an investment strategist and fixed income analyst at Threadneedle Asset Management. He is also a certified accountant.

Duncan has lectured extensively in Europe as well as the Middle and Far East across a broad range of financial topics encompassing capital markets, investment banking, economic analysis, accounting and asset management. He has delivered programmes to central banks and regulators as well as commercial banks and investment houses. In addition to the provision of courses through Euromoney, the London Financial Academy and other organisations, he has led MSc finance programmes at London Metropolitan University.

Duncan has also written a chapter on risk management for a recent Bloomsbury Press book on contemporary investment techniques and is the author of "Asset management in theory and practice".

He has served on the CFA (UK) examination panel for the Investment Management Certificate with specific responsibility for fixed income and economics question sets since 2005.